“ Paulette always had a way of leaving one at a loss for words; if for no other reason than her smile which she wore so well that most of the time nothing could dim its brilliance. She had a determined persistence that allowed nothing less than what she sought to do regardless of anyone's faith of whether it was even possible...these things never deterred her actions or efforts to accomplish what was needed. She could always hold a conversation with someone with a thirst of knowledge that was never fully quenched. She opened her door to many that others shunned and judged with caring words or a hug. We were all blessed knowing and being a part in her world
