“ She was the description of love .she never said no and she never gave up . Ive seen her cry 3 times in my whole 37 yrs of having her . 1st when she lost her husband our paw paw William , 2nd when she lost her 2nd son "my dad " - ( Duane Mclain) and about a month ago before she couldn't remember like I was used to she cried a 3rd and final time talking about her first born son Edwin Mclain. She was the most helpful and non judgemental person. She was also always trusted and loved everywhere she went .she was always cutting up and smiling or she was as serious as a full blooded flack foot Indian. She loved a yardage and treasure hunting other folks junk in hopes to fix it one-day. Gardening was her hobby and canning was her skill she mastered long ago. She never turned away a single person .but she would let you know all about yourself if you crossed her .but it was always out of love. She was at every birthday party every graduation every birth of my babies and she was the only person that would take 3 items in the kitchen and make a full course meal from it..and never wanted to sit down unless it was under a shade tree in her yard or by the ponds on her land ..she stood for the right and most beneficial place a person can be at. And when it came to letting go or shutting us out when her family broke the law and got into trouble she chose to bond them out and ket them know she was there and she definatly would put you to work in a jiffy and I dont know a single soul yet that ever said no or took her money for the work she asked of them. She will never be forgotten but I know she is right where the lord delivered her. I love you maw maw .and we wont ever be able to come close to the person you were in our life .but ill try daily to be more like you .. you were hands down the best .I miss you terribly.

Love your. Granddaughter, Michele and ur 2 great grandbaby boys.
